

Day 2: Problem Analysis and Solving

Morning Session:

Recap on Day 1 and introduction to the Day 2 Dynamic (08:30 – 09:00)

Group Work: Thematic Problem-Solving and Strategy Development Workshops 1: (9:00 AM - 10:30 AM)

These workshops serve as a continuation of Day 1 activities, progressing from problematisation to analysis, solution development, and ultimately, strategy formulation. Designed as collaborative sessions, they engage participants in a hands-on approach to craft strategies specifically tailored to address the challenges outlined on the previous day. Stakeholders from various sectors including healthcare professionals, community leaders, policymakers, and affected populations come together to deepen their analysis of the issues at hand, such as disease prevention, vaccine uptake, or health promotion.

The aim is to harness the collective expertise and perspectives present in the room, fostering a dynamic environment where innovative solutions can be birthed. Participants are encouraged to actively engage in brainstorming, discussion, and strategic planning, utilising structured activities, group dialogues, and targeted problem-solving exercises. These efforts culminate in the development of strategic plans that are not only innovative but also practical, ensuring that the solutions devised are actionable and sustainable with the potential to significantly improve health outcomes in the communities concerned.

Coffee Break (10:30 AM - 11:00 AM)

Group Work: Strategy Development Workshops 2 (11:00 AM - 12:30 PM)

Examen and Review (11:00 AM - 12:30 PM) – Fr Pierre Luhata, S.J.

Lunch Break (1:00 PM - 2:30 PM)

Plenary: Reports and Discussion: (2:30 PM - 4:30 PM)

The Plenary: Reports and Discussion session serves as a critical component of the convening, where participants reconvene to share insights and outcomes from the various workshops and group activities conducted. This session is designed to facilitate a comprehensive synthesis of information, allowing for the dissemination of knowledge and strategies developed in smaller groups to the larger assembly.

During this plenary session, designated representatives from each workshop group present detailed reports on their findings, the strategies they have developed, and the potential solutions they propose to address the specific public health issues discussed. These presentations are followed by an open forum discussion, where all participants are encouraged to provide feedback, pose questions, and offer additional insights. This interactive dialogue is essential for refining the strategies and ensuring they are robust, inclusive, and adaptable to different contexts.

The session aims to foster a sense of collective understanding and commitment among all attendees. It ensures that the knowledge generated in specialized groups is shared widely, promoting a unified approach to tackling the health challenges identified. Additionally, this plenary provides an opportunity for networking and strengthening collaborations, as stakeholders can identify areas of common interest and potential partnerships for future initiatives.

Ultimately, the Plenary: Reports and Discussion not only consolidates the work done during the convening but also sets the stage for actionable steps forward, ensuring that the momentum gained during the event is carried into the implementation phase of the strategies developed.

Coffee Break (4:30 PM - 5:00PM)

Roundtable: Follow-up and Reinforcement of Strategies (5:00 PM - 6:00 PM)

This Roundtable session is strategically scheduled towards the end of the second day (day 2) of the convening to focus on the crucial aspects of follow-up and reinforcement of the strategies discussed and developed during the earlier sessions. The primary objective of this roundtable is to establish a concrete plan for the continued application and evaluation of the strategies that participants have agreed upon.

During this session, participants gather in a semi-formal setting, conducive to open discussions and in-depth dialogue. Key stakeholders, including leaders from various sectors such as health, community, and policy, are brought together to ensure a holistic approach to the strategies' implementation. The discussion will revolve around setting realistic timelines, assigning responsibilities, and determining the resources needed to effectively carry out the strategies in their respective contexts.

An essential part of the roundtable is the discussion of mechanisms for monitoring and evaluation. This includes setting benchmarks for success and establishing regular review points to assess the progress of the strategies implemented. Participants will also discuss potential challenges and barriers to successful implementation, brainstorming possible solutions and adaptations to ensure the strategies remain effective and responsive to changing conditions.

The roundtable serves not only as a planning session but also as the beginning of a commitment ceremony as we prepare for the final day, where stakeholders re-affirm their dedication to the collaborative effort needed to see the strategies through. This session is vital for maintaining the momentum and ensuring that the ideas and plans formulated during the conference translate into tangible, lasting impacts in public health.
